

My TED

Research that matters Awakening aspirations

MyTed stands for My Tertiary Education Day and it is research that matters. It is a project that encourages primary school students and their parents to consider tertiary education opportunities. The research arises from the HEPPP-funded project - MyTED. It works on the premise that students are unable to aspire to attend tertiary education if they are unaware of the opportunities that are available to them or that University or TAFE exists.

Dr Ruth Greenaway

Research question: In what ways does an eBook about aspirations, that includes stories from tertiary education graduates, inform the capacity to aspire to participate in higher education ?

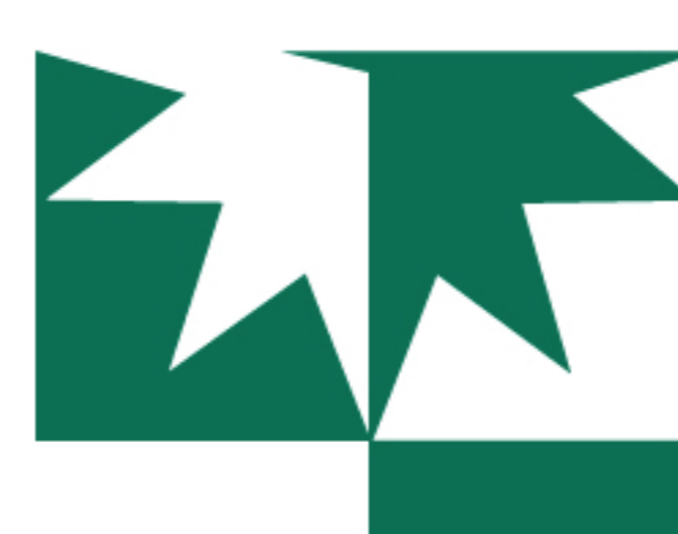

We'll find out by using participatory research, specifically PhotoVoice and MyVoice where students take photographs or draw pictures to represent their aspirations.

Dr Uwe Tertton

Quote: "Students cannot aspire to attend tertiary education if they are not aware of the opportunities available to them" – Edwina, 2013

Education matters therefore MyTED matters.

University of the Sunshine Coast

The best of both worlds